ARE ALL JOCKEYS THIEVES!

THE DUKE OF PORTLAND IS WRONG.

BUT THERE ARE SOME ECCENTRIC RIDERS ON

AMERICAN TRACKS. The Duke of Portland owns Ayrshire, the winner of the Derby, Donovan, the winner of a number of big two-year-old stakes, and the best or nearly the best two-year-old in England. He is one of the richest and most conspicuous of English noblemen. In a letter which was produced at the recent sensational libel suit of the English jockey Wood, the Duke of Portland gave it as his opinion that all jockeys are thieves, and he expressed this verdict with an intensifying participle not to be repeated here, which consigned the riders of race-horses to everlasting nishment. Although the Duke of Portland owns the strongest stable in England and is one of the wealthiest and most influential owners of race-horses in the world, this sweeping condemnation seems to be somewhat too broad and comprehensive. It is not true that all jockeys are thieves. There are me honest ones in the brotherhood. But the careful student of racing form this year in America must reluctantly come to the conclusion that not a few American jockeys have extremely loose and low notions of morality, of loyalty to their employers and of uprightness in any way. Jockey Wood was the foremost of English jockeys after Archer's death. The stewards of the English Club, with ample reasons for their course, that this fellow could ride no more races in England. His reputation was too bad and ng was too suspicious. Their action deprived Wood of an income-as he testified in the recent tria -of about $30,000 a year. There is a renowned and skilful jockey in America, whom many stupid blockheads are continually praising as honest, who is as uncertain, as tricky, as peculiar and as disloyal as ever was the worst of English jockeys. When he rides a horse that is at an outside price in the betting, his riding is often almost as good as McLaughlin's or Hayward's. When he rides a strong favorite, it benooves the public to beware of that favorite. Jockey Wood had an income of $30,000 last year. The American jockey referred to undoubtedly made a great deal more money than that by his peculiar performan-ces in 1887. He displayed every evidence of extensive means. His bets were on a great scale and he lavished money freely. How long the American turf will endure his singular performances is an interesting question.

attendance at Monmouth Park yesterday was amazingly large for a day on which no great stakes were to be decided, and which followed directly after the enormous outpouring of the Fourth of July. There was much that was interesting, amusing and instructive in the sport. A cool sea-breeze was blowing, and the course was more comfortable than the A thunderstorm came up before the second race, but passed over without a heavy fall of rain, and although the track was muddy on top after the shower, it was not really heavy at any time. Before the rain fell it was extremely fast. Superintendent Van Keuren had done excellent work on it, and indeed the new superintendent of Monmouth has shown exceptional skill in all his work and has accomplished much. BROOKDALE'S FLYING SPRINTER.

The first race was a breezer, indeed, Mr. Witners's Salisbury winning easily in 1:14, with Mr. Belmont's Lady Primrose second. Swift was a strong favorite, but failed to get a place. Swift is a peculiar mare, and she belongs to a peculiar owner. Although al through the betting it was odds on swift, after the Although all racing it was gravely asserted by certain serious-faced sages that Swift could never carry 116 pounds. This is ridiculous. Swift can carry 116 pounds and win with 116 pounds. The chief trouble with her seemed to be that she was too strong a favorite..

Holiday led in the betting on the second race on the supposition that she was to carry 112 pounds, as was marked on the card. But a careful study of the conditions of the race showed that the filly should carry 119 pounds, as she won the Zephyr Stakes at Copey Island, and after she had gone to the post she was called back and the additional weight was put in the saddle. The extra burden of seven pounds just beat Hollday, Diablo getting home in front. The fault was Wyndham Walden's, Hollday's owner. He ought to have known, if he had given sufficient attention to the conditions of the race, that the true weight of his filly was 119 pounds, and it was culpable negligence that allowed so much betting on her on the basis of a burden of 112 pounds. But Diablo is un-doubtedly a good two-year-old. He handles weight well and shows exceptional speed. STRANGE RIDING OF GEORGE OYSTER.

Mr. Delmont may well clap his hands and rejoice that he was not present at Monmouth yesterday. If he had been at the course he might well have over the massacre of his fine colt, George Oyster. It may be suggested to Mr. Belmont with due defrence and humility that he ought to be extremely careful in selecting his jockeys when his entries go the post as great favorites. It was odds on George Oyster throughout the betting. He was ridden in the most remarkable manner. Garrison handled him and throughout the race he seemed at a loss how to ride. Rarely has this skilful and accomplished lockey dis-Rarely has this shilful and accomplished jorkey displayed so much blundering in the course of a race. He permitted the colt to be interfered with and carried out at the turns, never seemed to be master of his mount, and coming up the homestretch he apparently hesitated a long time as to which of the three routes he should select to the winning line. The result was that Senator Hearst's fast filly Gorgo won the race with George Oyster in third place close up to Mr. Withers's Inverwiek. Turfinen with good memories may recall that the same jockey rode this colt at Jerome Park last autumn, when George Oyster was a great favorite, and kinr Crab outran him to the unbounded amazement of the most accomplished experts. George Oyster has suffered much from rheutentism this last spring, but he suffered more from jockeyship yesterday. Gorgo is a good jockeyship yesterday. Gorgo is a good like. The racing column of The Tribune extolled her merits when she ran at sheepshead Bay. But if Melaughlin of Hayward had been on George Oyster yesterday, and had deup his best to win the race, it is not likely that Gorgo would have been first.

Melaughlin did not ride at all yesterday, however. In his efforts to reduce weight, yesterday morning, he was attached by stomach trouble, and was forced to ride home instead of walking. McLaughlin's health is now somewhat shaky and uncertain. He should take great care of himself, or America's foremast jockey may get into such a condition that it will be impossible for him to ride races.

TELIE DOE UNABLE TO RESPOND. played so much blundering in the course of a race.

TELIE DOE UNABLE TO RESPOND.

Prince Royal and Favor were both withdrawn from the fourth race, leaving only W. B. Jennings's mare, Telle Doe, to run against A. J. Cassatt's colt Taragou. Hayward was on Telle Doe, while Martin rode Tara-This was a race full of the elements of genuine Telie Doe generally wins her races by wait ing during the first part, and coming with a rush in the latter half, but this time, although she carried the top weight, Hayward took her into the leading position and kept her in front for five furionss. Then Taragon joined her, and as the mare was unable to respond to Hayward's riding, Taragon beat her home easily. This race filled the air with sareasm and frony. Mr. Withers asked Hayward about his riding after the race, and the great jockey replied that the mare seemed unable to show any speed at any time. She did not answer his calls. W. B. Jennings may be an ornament to the American turf, but it might do no harm for the Monmouth Park and other racing associations to request him to confine his future efforts to Missouri and other distant points. the latter half, but this time, although she carried the

Ed. Gilman was the favorite for the hurdle race, but Burr Oak beat him after a good finish. but Burr Oak beat him after a good missi. Sult might have been reversed if the ricer of Ed. Gilman had not dropped his whip at the last hurdle. Downing rode Danaher's Referee. He accmed no more anxions to get a place with him than he was with Killarney on Wednesday. Steeplechasing and hurdle racing are full of pitfalis, abuses and swindles, but really this man Powning is too much for the stoutest stomach to stand.

GLANCES HERE AND THERE.

The splendid Lorillard Stakes, to be run to-morrow at Monmouth, will be worth this year nearly $20,000 to the wigner. It looks now as if the finish is to be between Mr. Relmont's Prince Royal, Mr. Haggin's Fitzjames, and the Dwyer brothers' filly Belle B. The Dwyers are trying to get Sir Dixon ready for this race, but the colt is in poor condition. They will make the most grievous of blunders if they start him to-morrow in a hard race at a mile and a half if he is not really fit. To race him against Prince Royal when he is out of condition would probably result in breaking him down or in ruining him for this year. The Omnibus is yet to come. That is as rich a stake as the Lorillard. The Dwyers should not make the mistake of running Sir Dixon in the Lorillard and losing all chance of the Omnibus. Schator Hearst was at the course, and rejoiced greatly over the victory of his imported filly Gorgo. This is certainly an uncommonly good filly, and be-yond question the best filly of her age in America. l'et she had no warrant to beat George Oyster if the

Belmont colt were ridden with skill and energy. It was reported at the course that Prederick Gebhard had matched one of his horses against some other animal for $1,000 a side, in a race to be can at Monmouth next week. Mr. Gebhard was present at the track, looking extremely handsome and much like the Duke of Portland. Mrs. Langtry was on the club house balcony in a costume of pure white, and looked lovely and fascinating beyond precedent. Withers gallantly paid his compilments at the shrine of beauty, in spite of his pressing engagements in the judges' stand. Among other ladies present of exceptional beauty and exceptional taste in costume, were Mrs. Lauree and Miss Schroeder. The racing element was represented at the course by the Dwyer brothers, Mr. Withers, Mr. Galway, B. A. Haggin, Senator Hearst, Wyndham Walden, Senator Davis, Colonel Frank Hall, J. G. K. Lawrence, A. L. Wolcott, J. Langfeld, owner of Diablo and of the Castle Stable; Oden Isowie, jr., Berry Wall and many others.

J. O. Donner has bought the celt Charley Dreux from Major Doswell, price private.

John Kelly is winning golden opinions on all sides by his admirable management of the affairs of the betting ring as the representative of the association. No one names him but to praise him. Mr. Kelly is conspicuously the right man in the right place.

All race-lovers should bear in mind that they can take the ferry at the foot of Liberty-st, every race-day at 1 o'clock precisely, and go down to the track by a special train of parior cars (extra charge forty cents each way) and reach the course in time for the first race at 2.30. This special parlor-car train leaves Monmouth after the last race and comes up in a little more than an hour. All the transportation arrangements are excellent, incomparably better than ever before. The Monmouth Park managment yesterday was again faultiessly prompt and chicient, and the spectators reached New-York only a few minutes after To'clock. This is great work.

The Gorhams and the Cuban Giants played another ell-contested game of baseball at the Polo Grounds yesterday. The general fielding was excellent throughout. The Gorhams held the lead up to the eighth inning, when their opponents began to wield the bat with effect and won the game. GAMES IN OTHER CITIES Chicago, July 5.—The Chicago and Philadelphia clubs had another hard fight for baseball honors to-day. Young Brynan pitched for the home club, but the Chicago nine owes its victory more to the admirable support given the young pitcher than to Brynan's work itself. Gleson pitched a better game, but was not nearly so well supported The score was as follows: Philadelphia 0 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 0 3

Umpire-Mr. Kelly, Pittsburg, July 5.-The Washington club defea Pittsburg nine to-day after an exceedingly well played and exciting game. The fielding blunders of the home club were costly. in to-day's game between the Indianapolis and Boston clubs. The home nine found Clarkson's delivery casy to olve and won as follows: Roston 2 0 3 0 0 0 0 2 0-7 Indianapolis . . . 3 0 1 4 0 0 0 1 1-10

NO TWENTY-FIVE-CENT BASEBALL. St. Louis, July 5 (Special)—The American Association of bail clubs held a special meeting to-day for the purpose of discussing the price of admission. The meeting was called by request of the St. Louis, Kansas City, Louis-ville and Athletic clubs. There was a long debate on the question of returning to the old prices, and then a vote was taken, and twenty-five-cent baseball was beaten. St. Louis, Athletic and Louisville voted in favor and Brooklyn. Baltimore, Krosas City and Cleveland against. The Athletic club was allowed to charge only twenty-five cents admission in order to meet the League price.
